The future is renewable. The use of renewable resources for other purposes alongside energy is growing in importance. This trend was recognised early on by the organisers of the International Symposium on “Raw Materials made from Renewable Resources” and they are inviting you already for the 8th time to the meeting of experts at the Messe Erfurt Centre from 9th to 10th September 2010.

According to the action plan passed by the government on the use of renewable resources for other purposes 53,000 jobs alone will be created in Germany by this. With this in mind process engineers, chemists, producers and material scientists will be discussing the status and prospects of the use of raw materials for other purposes in Erfurt. There are lectures on composite materials from natural fibres, cellulose as a material base as well as bio-based adhesives and wood fibre materials on the programme.

Present your company where roughly 200 industry experts from over 15 countries are meeting and profit from the ideal combination of an international congress and exhibition in the foyer of the congress centre! Please note:

The International Symposium with accompanying exhibition is taking place from the 9th to 10th September 2010 at the Congress Centre.

The agricultural exhibition “Grüne Tage Thüringen” (Green Time is Thuringia) is starting on the 10th September in the three exhibition halls”. About 22,000 visitors are expected at probably the Free State's largest feast for the eyes and taste buds. As an “exhibition within an exhibition” narotech, the Exhibition for Renewable Materials, offers information on everything to do with the topic of renewable materials. We would be happy to send you any information about exhibiting in the exhibition halls!
